From the brilliant mind of multi-awarded director Rodrigo Sorogoyen (Oscar©-nominated. Winner of 6 Goya Awards©. Cesar Award© winner. Director of As Bestas, a box office hit in Spain and France) comes this heartwarming love story that unfolds over a decade.

A love-and-heartbreak story that captivates with its realism and complex, human characters.

Boy meets girl at New Year's Eve. They love, they lose, and they find each other again. Over ten years, this boy and girl will discover that we can't always be with the one we love... But every New Year's Eve, we can try to reclaim them.

Georgina Amorós Karra Elejalde Arturo Querejeta Joel Bosqued Sandra Vidorreta Maribel Salas An edge-of-your-seat thriller set in an incredible northern landscape. Starring Georgina Amorós (Élite), created by Agustín Martínez (La Caza, one of Netflix's most-watched series, which has been acquired for a remake in France) and directed by Óscar Pedraza (Patria, Sky Rojo) and Álex Rodrigo (Money Heist, Vis a Vis).

Sandra, a 29-year-old police assistant in a northern village, joins a group of workers to shore up a cabin on the brink of collapse.

Their plans are disrupted when, inside, they discover an elderly woman who has recently passed away—a situation that seems impossible to Sandra. Especially because the deceased woman before them is Juliana Cobián, and Juliana Cobián was buried seven years ago, with the entire town attending the funeral.

Who, then, was buried? And where has Juliana been all this time?

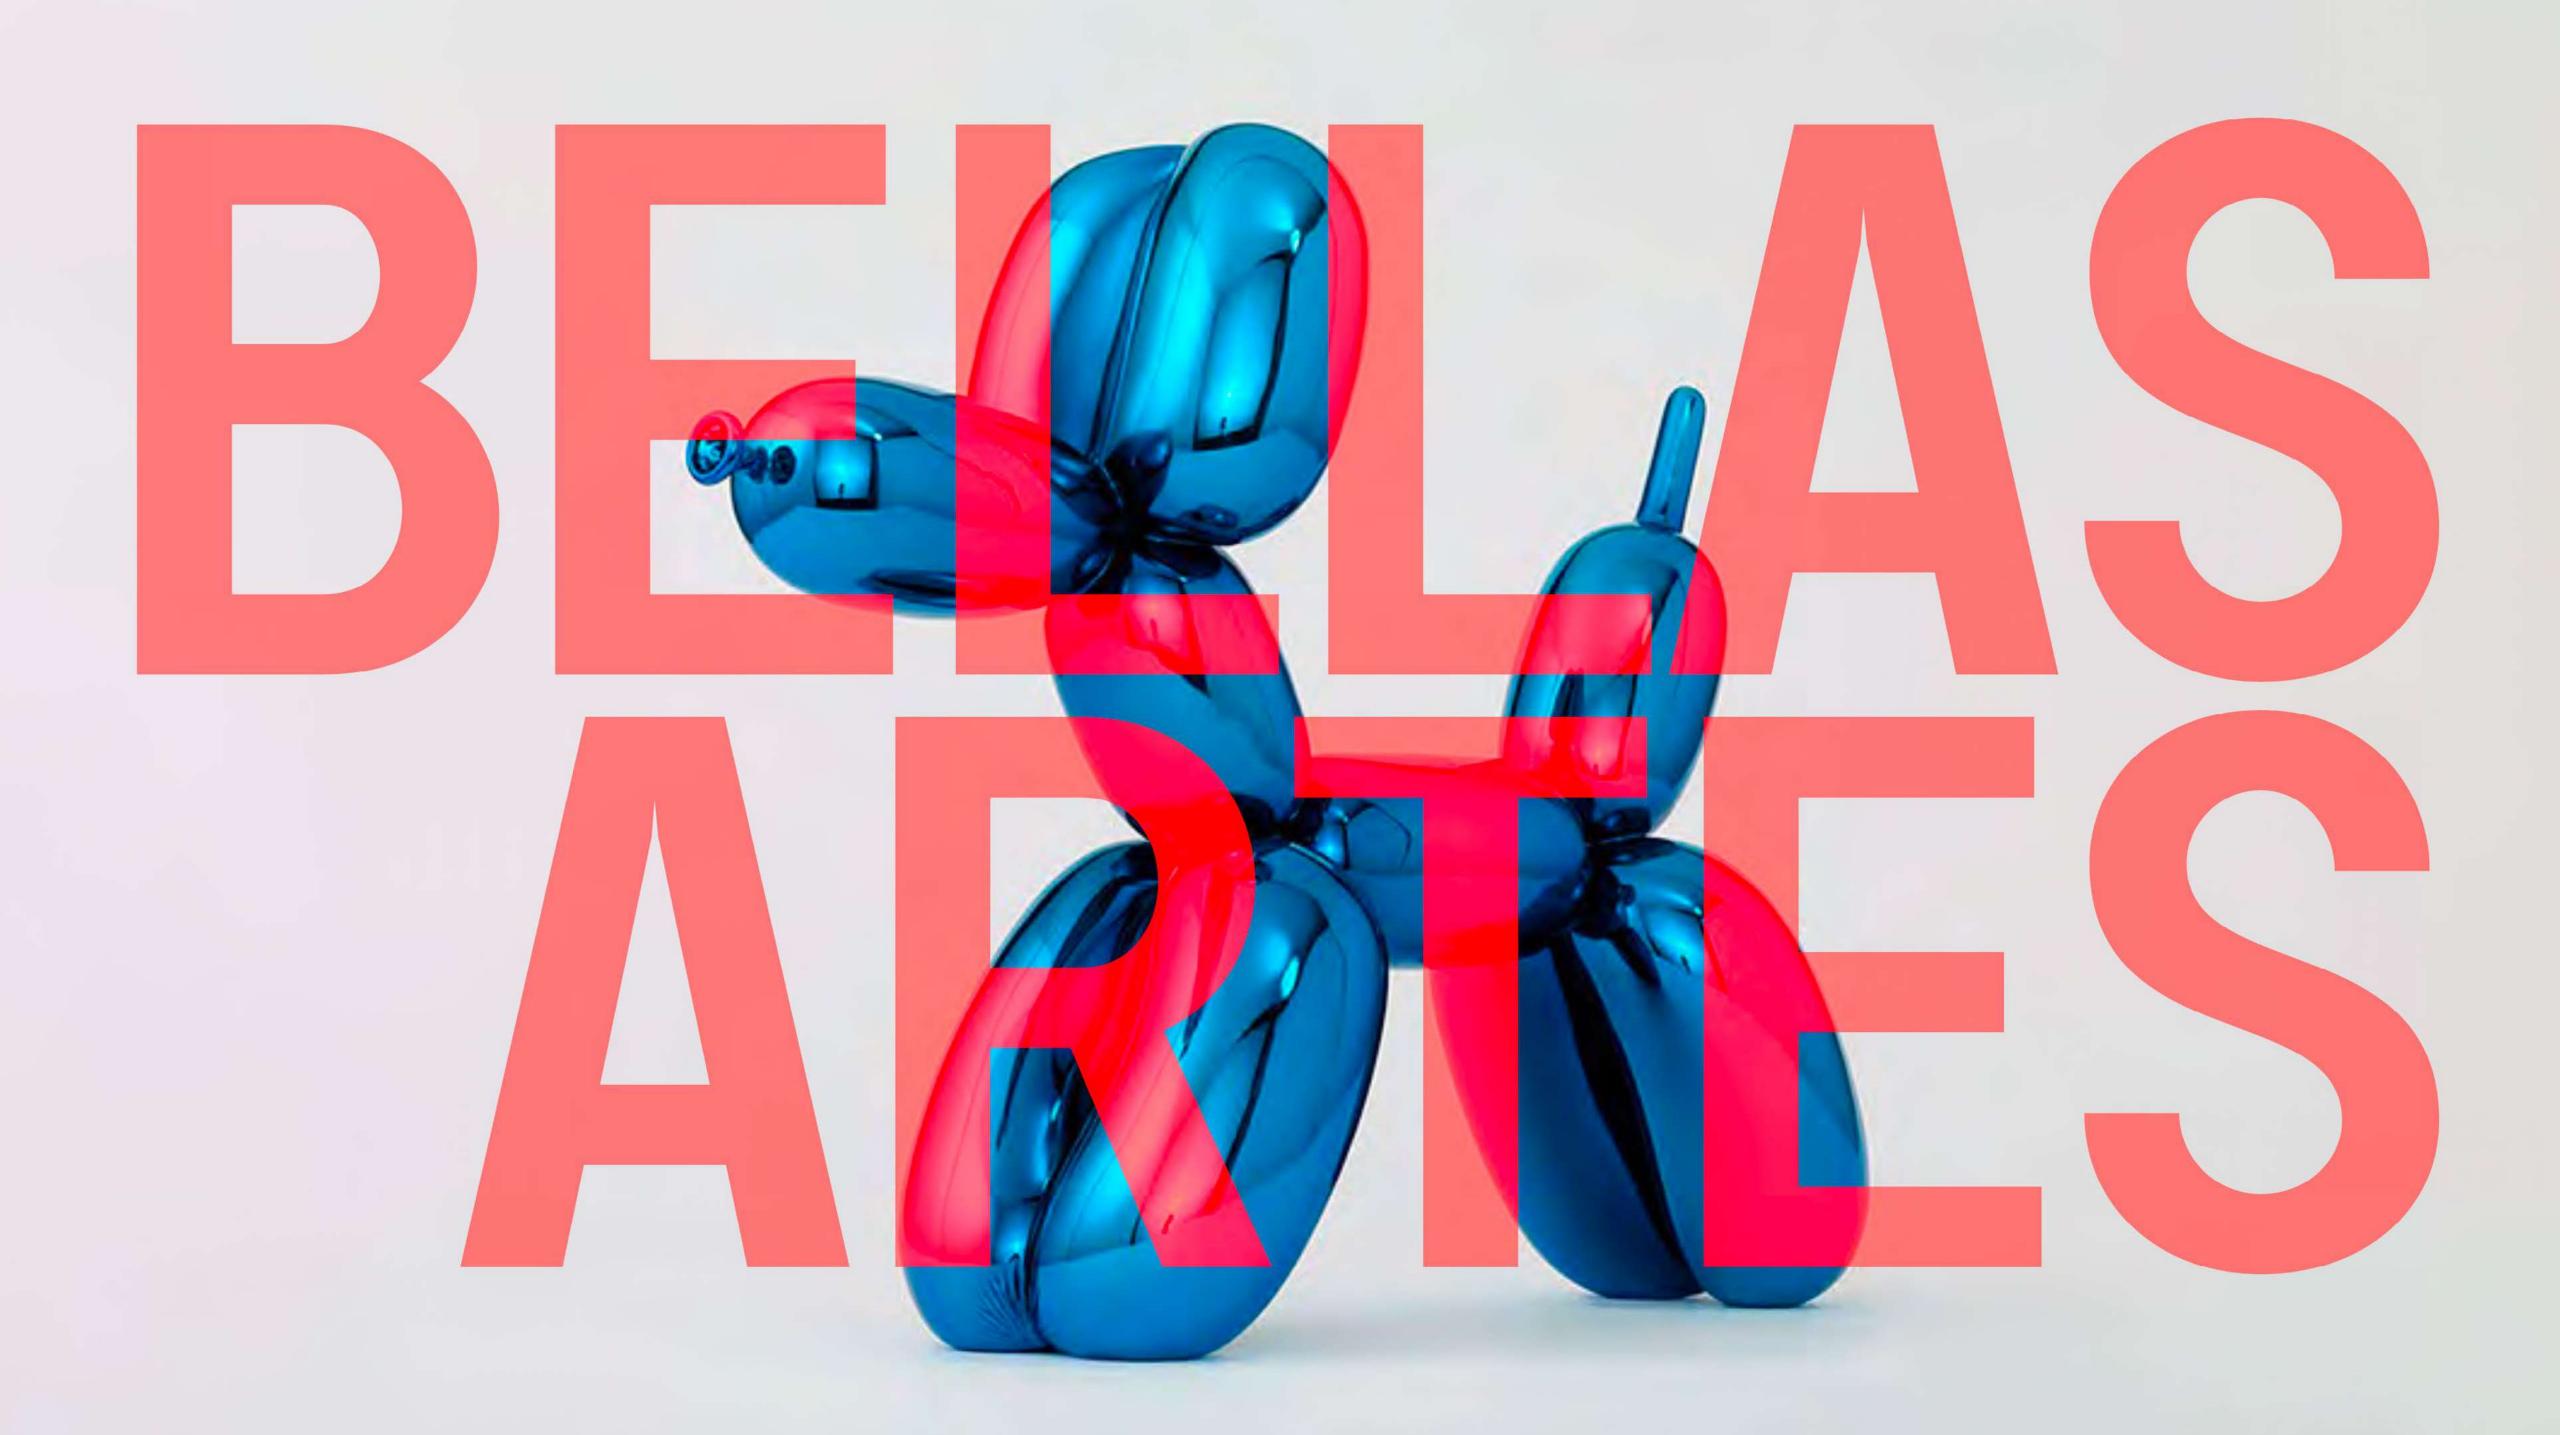

Hugo Silva Khalid El Paisano Anna Isabelle Acevedo Elvira Mínguez Aurora Moroni Fernando Cayo Welcome to Marbella, one of the main tourist destinations in Europe and the United Nations of organized crime, the place with the highest concentration of organized crime in all of Europe. A wealthy coastal town where luxury hotels, high-end cars, private clubs, and sunny beaches coexist with international mafias, kidnappings, robberies, and drugs.

Hugo Silva (from "The Ministry of Time" and Almodóvar's "I'm so excited!") and Ana Isabelle Acevedo (from Spielberg's "West Side Story") star in this thriller based on a prestigious journalistic investigation. Thriller, action, police investigation, and crime are some of the explosive elements of Marbella.

The series that has become a phenomenon in Spain.

From the talented duo Javier Ambrossi and Javier Calvo (creators of Paquita Salas on Netflix and Veneno on HBO US) starring Lola Dueñas and Carmen Machi (regular actresses in Almodóvar's films) among others.

As disturbing inspiring.

A suspense-driven mystery-thriller that tells the story of Enric and Irene as they live outside their family sect. A brother and her sister who are now far from the reach of their mother, yet not completely free.

A dark childhood, unbearable memories and a toxic relationship with their mom are part of their past, from which they can't escape.

With an unconventional narrative structure, different perspectives and flashbacks, this is the story of how music and art provide a means to escape from terror.

How long does a crisis last? What comes after a catharsis?

For María, Cris and Esther, life turned upside down in the first season of Vida Perfecta, pushing them into the unexpected, into vertigo, and they saw how the pieces on the board of their lives tumbled through the air and became disordered, but what happens next? How do you start reordering all those pieces that got messed up at some point in your life? How do you put yourself back together?

These three women are about to experience what happens right after life throws you a curveball, after a pregnancy, a couple's crisis, a work, personal and life crisis... They will have to make decisions, grow up and learn that life is like that, and that maybe life doesn't throw you just one curveball, maybe it keeps on doing it.

It has been a few weeks since the death of Merlí. Pol, the professor's disciple, does not know what he is going to do. His father and Bruno encourage him to go to college and follow in his teacher's footsteps.

The philosophy course is harder than Pol expected. Little by little he gets the hang of it and realises that philosophy is his vocation. Among the professors, he discovers María Bolaño, an irreverent and fiery-tongued lecturer, who soon becomes his new mentor. In college, Pol makes friends: Rai, Biel, Oti and Minerva. With them he grows and has new adventures while he continues to search for his identity.

He falls in love, but, for the first time in his life, this is not reciprocated. Passions, desires and envy are a daily occurrence, but in spite of this, the group grows stronger and becomes inseparable. Bruno, on the other hand, starts a history degree and also makes new friends, but he always keeps one eye on Pol.

Through a book he receives at his small publishing house, Javier discovers the turbulent story of Amelia Garayoa, a woman who, moved by her ideals, was able to leave her whole life behind in order to fight for freedom.

As the result of her encounter with the four men who mark her life –Santiago (her husband), Pierre, Albert and Max– Amelia finds herself involved in the most important events of 20th century history, from Franco's uprising to the liberation of Berlin, the rise of communism in Stalin's Moscow, the barbarism of Warsaw's ghettos, the Rome of II Duce's final years and the decline of Nazi Germany in occupied Athens.

With one eye on the past and the other on the future, Dime quién soy recounts Europe's recent history personified by a woman who will never finish paying the price of her own contradictions.

Time has passed since the birth of the twins. Berto and Sandra now have a large family and, to complicate things further, they have moved to the suburbs. His life has become a tangled puzzle of obligations, schedules and commitments. You know what they say: "the older the children, the bigger the problems". Although, on second thoughts, he wishes this was actually their main problem.

The road becomes rocky for Berto and Sandra, with a rebellious son, a family in the midst of upheaval, and a double pregnancy. And in the midst of it all, Berto is getting ready to film a series about his life as a father. A much-needed series, of course, and quite a professional challenge. Of course it is. But days only have 24 hours in them, and the filming takes up what little room he has left in his already busy family life.

Because...hold on, what actually is his real life?

Berto and Sandra are a couple facing the adventure of parenthood with the arrival of their first child, Lucas. A new life that comes without an instruction manual.

He is a successful comedian and television host. She is an anaesthesiologist following in her family's footsteps. Together they must come to terms with this new situation where their family, friends and even the world won't make it easy for them.

Look What you've done is a romantic comedy in which "boy meets girl" becomes "girl and boy meetbaby". Based on Berto Romero's own and borrowed experiences, it explains what almost nobody dares tell: the madness and difficulty of parenting.

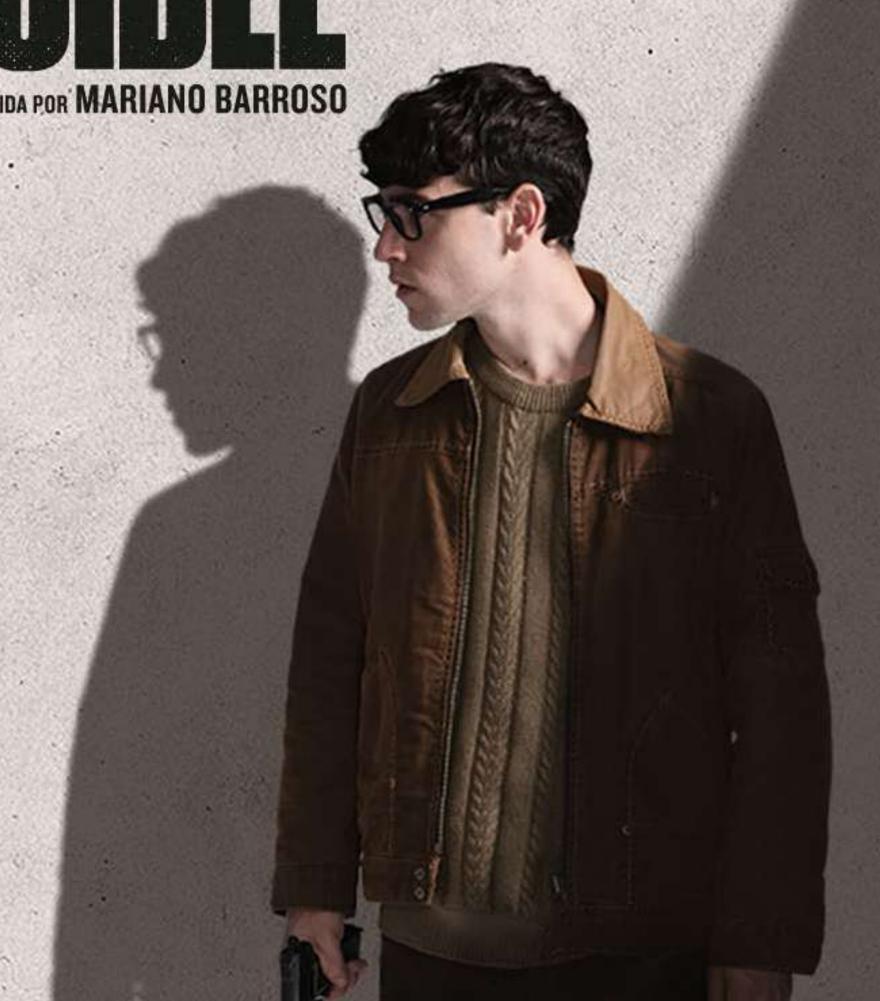

An ironic, relatable, true-to-life series with dramatic moments.

On 7 June, 1968, ETA leader Txabi Etxebarrieta crossed "the invisible line" when he killed the organisation's first victim, the Galician civil guard José Antonio Pardines.

A few hours later, Txabi himself was killed in a confrontation with the Civil Guard, becoming the first to kill and the first to die in the history of ETA.

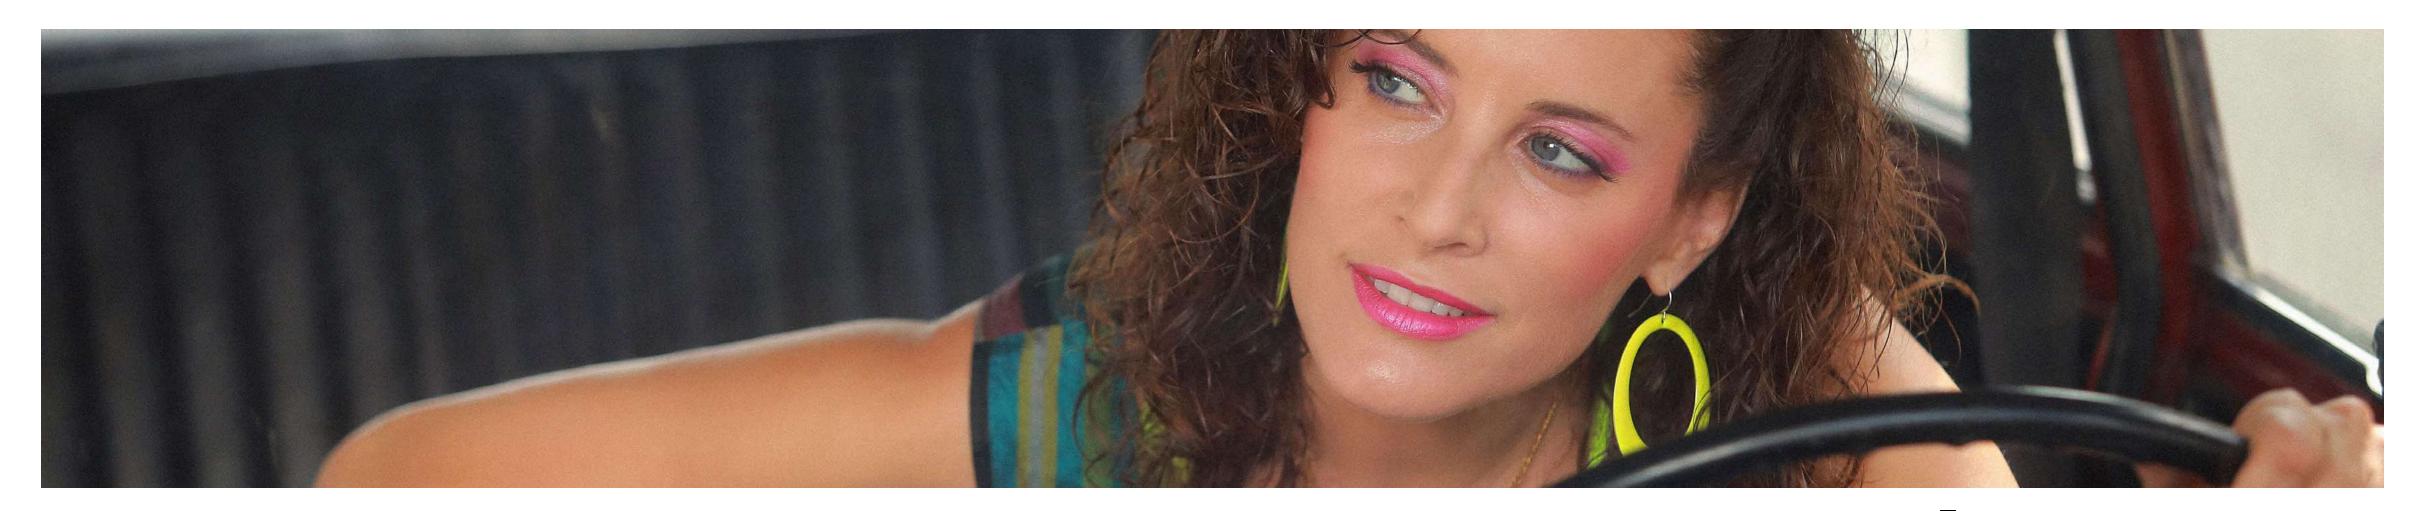

After the death of their leader, Txabi's comrades decide to avenge his death by assassinating their main persecutor, Inspector Melitón Manzanas. They are unaware that they are on the verge of triggering the pain and revenge, fear and terror that will mark the next fifty years of Spanish history.

Jesús loses his temper with Yusuf in front of the whole of Spain and what were once minor, embarrassing inconveniences are now a major setback that makes the star of Vergüenza the most hated man in Spain. Jesus is, inevitably, a national embarrassment. An explosive situation with unforeseeable consequences for him and Nuria.

Black Santa

Javier Gutiérrez Malena Alterio Miguel Rellán Vito Sanz Lola Casamayor We go back a few months to the time when Nuria was pregnant and had a check-up at the gynaecologist. He confidently confirms that she is going to have a boy, but Nuria doesn't trust him because he was the one that told her she would not be able to get pregnant.

Christmas is coming and nobody wants to spend it with the family, especially Carlos, who finds doing anything with Jesús unbearable, and Nuria is struggling with the discomfort of her very advanced pregnancy. Jesús manages to get everyone involved and organises a family dinner at his house. Aurora and Francisco, his parents, and Nuria's parents attend the dinner. Oscar, who has nowhere to spend Christmas, has also been invited. This year, Christmas is special because Yusuf is with them.

Jesús wants Yusuf to experience Christmas properly, so he dresses up as Father Christmas. This and other misunderstandings caused by the clumsiness of the main character turn Christmas dinner into an absolute nightmare for everyone, especially Nuria. To the point that she goes into labour, but even in hospital she can't get away from her family. And yes, just as the doctor didn't predict, it's a girl!

Jesús and Nuria are a normal couple with a normal life, in other words, in permanent crisis. He is a wedding and baptism photographer, but he believes he has a calling to something more sublime: "artistic photography". She faces an unstable employment situation and fears that she will not achieve the goals she dreamed of when she was younger. Together, however, and on top of it all, they have a bit of a big problem. In any situation, they are always doomed to make fools of themselves in front of their friends and family, looking awful in the most uncomfortable way. Has Jesús cursed Nuria with embarrassment? Is there any cure for social shame?

LAVANGUARDIA

Verónica Sánchez Álvaro Morte Irene Arcos Roberto Enríquez Marta Milans Alejandra confesses her true identity to Veronica and, with this revelation, everything that has been established between them is shattered. The roles are reversed, and both are placed in totally different positions: Verónica, who until now had been the lover, becomes the victim of deception, and Alejandra, with her need to understand what happened to her husband, becomes hedonistic, living polyamorously without any questions, prejudices and guilt stifling her emotions and identity.

New information about the last days of Óscar's life leads to something seemingly very difficult: Alejandra and Verónica must team up to discover what really happened when he died. They also turn to Conrado, and the trio ride the line between the murder and the desperate need to unleash their primal instincts.

Verónica Sánchez Irene Arcos Álvaro Morte The night Alejandra receives the news that her husband has committed suicide, she realises two things: that the skyscraper her studio has just sold to a British investment fund is not actually the most important thing in the world, and that she didn't really know Óscar despite having been married to him for 15 years. Her husband had been leading a double life in Albufera with a daughter and a charming woman who is everything she is not: spontaneous, free, and wild.

Alejandra poses as a stranger to delve into Verónica's life in search of answers, and it leads her, without her realising it, down the same path that Óscar took; that of a different life, of a life that starts from scratch and desperate for freedom like an animal that has spent a lifetime in captivity.

El Embarcadero tells the story of Alejandra's journey, where she is immersed in the search for a profound truth spanning her entire world. The truth about her and her emotions, about her relationship with her mother, about what is important in life and, of course, the truth about her relationship with Óscar and the deeper reasons that triggered his fateful end.

The years have passed and a big brand offers to buy the galleries from the Velvet team. They all feel that it is time to move on from Velvet, despite the doubts and the difficulty of bringing this special stage of their lives to a close.

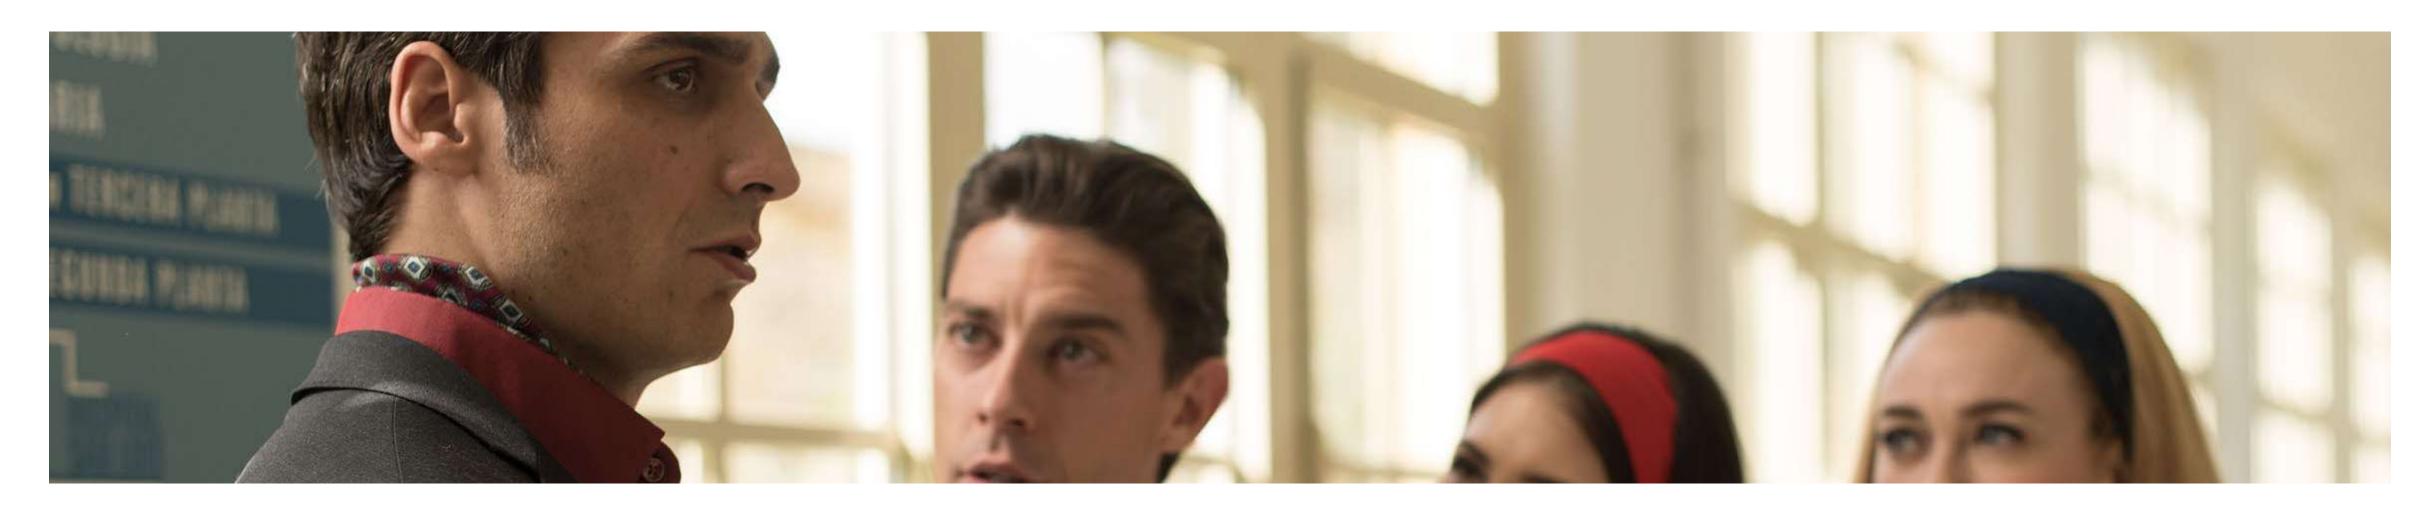

It is clear to them that they cannot let this great opportunity pass them by and they decide to take advantage of it to organise a big event to say goodbye and pay tribute to the place where they met and that has seen them grow. A celebration that is the best excuse to remember old friends, begin new adventures or restart others they thought they had finished.

The galleries, which have become a fashion benchmark in Barcelona, receive the biggest commission in the history of Velvet Colección: the dress for the coronation of Farah Diba, the queen of Iran. It would be a dream job, were it not for the fact that the gallery team are forced to deal with Omar Ahmadi, the Iranian ambassador, a man of dark intentions who is willing to do anything to achieve his crooked plans. This new assignment could be the ultimate international triumph for Velvet Colección or its downfall, depending on how the events unfold...

Mateo, who returns to the galleries to try to restore his relationship with Clara, puts the Iranian ambassador, whom he knows well from a journalistic investigation he carried out in the past, in check. Sergio also finds himself involved in the corrupt plot that Omar is leading.

In the second half of the 16th century, Seville was the global metropolis. A gateway of light between America and Europe. A city where wealth flourished freely thanks to international trade, gold and silver, and to the blend of locals and foreigners: Christians, converted Jews, Moors, slaves, freedmen, rogues, thieves, prostitutes, nobles and commoners.

But it was also a gateway to the shadows of filth, famine, floods and epidemics. During an outbreak of the plague, former soldier Mateo returns, honouring his word, to rescue the son of a deceased friend. Mateo had fled the city, condemned to death by the Inquisition for printing banned books. Before leaving the city, Mateo is arrested by the Grand Inquisitor's bailiffs, who promise to spare his life in exchange for solving a series of murders with diabolical overtones.

This recording is the main clue in the investigation: it shows the blurred face of one of the attackers. Three weeks later, at a police station in another district, an officer thinks he recognises that same blurred face when he sees Pablo Ibar, a Spaniard arrested for a weapons-related disturbance. However, Pablo swears that he had nothing to do with the murder. No evidence found at the crime scene is either conclusive or incriminating... but it doesn't matter.

Marco is a very desirable man. A young entrepreneur who heads up one of the most successful tech companies on the international scene, ALVA, which is about to launch its latest prototype on to the market: CYCLON, an electric car powered by turbines that convert wind into energy.

Working alongside him are his friend and fellow student, Diego, and Diego's wife, Barbara, the efficient marketing manager. The team welcomes Eva, a young and ambitious engineer with a lot to hide, who will upset the work and emotional balance between the two partners.

Despite his popularity, and unlike Diego, Marco is not a man known for his social life. He is a loner who nobody can get close to, apart from his psychologist, Sara, who he is emotionally dependent on. Marco's demons are endless and, although he tries to fight them, his only escape is sport and a private club. There, everyone is concerned only with pleasure and giving free rein to their most erotic fantasies, with no fear of falling in love, as everyone's face is hidden from view.

Everything changes when Marco receives an unexpected visit, someone important from his past, who completely disrupts his life and the relationship he has had with his brother José, an autistic 18-year-old, who for the last six months has been cared for by a very special young woman, Carol. This journey into his past shows Marco that his own worst enemy is none other than himself.
